TEACHING PHILOSOPHY

Creating a challenging and engaging learning environment within the parameters of the University's mission and vision statement, so that students are inspired to pursue personal and academic intelligence; ultimately students can live out their respective ambitions and aspirations.

RESEARCH INTERESTS

My primary research interests include theologies of leadership and leadership theories. New generations, such as Gen Z and Gen Alpha have become so technically advanced and somewhat persuaded that they do not need physical interaction to fulfill their potential. Furthermore, verbal communication has become scarce in the Gen Z and Gen Alpha population. I am convinced that the Gen Z and Gen Alpha population need to be informed of theologies of leadership and leadership theories. More specifically, I believe leadership theories such as the Contingency Theory, Servant Leadership Theory, and Courage Theory within the parameters of theologies of leadership can influence the Gen Z and Gen Alpha population that leaders are created and not necessarily born.
