

M. Daniel

Psychology Lecturer

Education

Masters in Industrial Psychology, August 2018
Southern New Hampshire University

Bachelor of Science in Experimental Psychology, Business minor, December 2003
Texas Christian University

Associate of Arts, Cornerstone Honors Program, with honors, May 2001
Tarrant County College

Positions Held

Lecturer, September 2023-Current
Texas A&M University – San Antonio

Adjunct Instructor, August 2018-September 2023
Texas A&M University – San Antonio

Awards

College of Arts and Sciences Outstanding Adjunct Faculty Awards, 2023
Dr. Maria Hernandez Ferrier Award Nominee, TAMUSA, Fall 2021
Outstanding Graduate Student Award, Southern New Hampshire University, 2018

Publications

Daniel, A. M. & Daniel, M. (under review). The Power of Proper Names: The Unique Naming Effect

Presentations

Daniel, A. M. & Daniel, M. (2023, October). The Unique-Naming Effect: When Labeling Leads to Love.
Presentation at the Annual ARMADILLO: The Southwest Cognition Conference.

Daniel, A. M. & Daniel, M. (2023 April). Psy vs. Psy: A model for incorporating web content into traditional and online courses. Presented at the Southwestern Psychological Association Conference, Frisco, TX.

Courses Taught

General Psychology
The Psychology Major
Writing in Psychology
Senior Seminar
JagTracks
Industrial/Organizational Psychology
Learning