This course involves the study of important issues in the field of policing with an emphasis on tackling real world problems. Specifically, students will explore and discuss recent issues and controversies regarding American policing.

Course Learning Outcomes:

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to: 1) Discuss issues and controversies of police misconduct in modern society. 2) Analyze police-community relations issues: Mainly regarding the relationship between minority/impoverished community and the police. 3) Evaluate what needs to change in police organization and policing to improve police legitimacy and police-community relations. 4) Examine what conflict, resistance, or obstacles we may face when trying to reform the police.

Required Textbook:

No textbook is required in this course. You will be searching for necessary scholarly articles on Google Scholar on a weekly basis. That is, based on the weekly topic, you will need to search on Google Scholar to gather supporting evidence for your critical writing.

Class Format:

This course will consist of weekly Critical Writing. Specifically, students will be provided with a weekly topic. They will be asked to take side and provide a scholarly presentation of their arguments (supporting evidence). All writing must be in APA format with proper citations. If the argument or the supporting evidence is weak or is suspected in use of AI, a student will be asked to defend their writing via Zoom conference. If the student cannot defend their writing (unwilling or unable), it will be considered an automatic zero.

Assessments

Introduce Yourself Assignment (10 points)

You will submit a Zoom video recording of a presentation about yourself. This is to make sure you understand how to record your presentations via Zoom and submit it to Blackboard. Instructions are provided in Blackboard.

Critical Writing (220 points)

A total of 11 Critical Writing assignment worth 20 points each will be completed throughout the semester. Each week, you will be provided with a discussion topic. You are required to take a stance regarding the topic. You must critically assess the topic by assessing the information to understand your topic (provided each week) from more than one perspective. Specifically, you must make logical connections between ideas and offer your own perspective on the topic (your argument) based on your evaluation of the scientific evidence. Note here that only scientific evidence from Google Scholar will be permitted as evidence. Word count for each Critical Writing assignment will be 1000 (only counting main text). Anything below 1000 words will be an automatic zero. All writing, especially Critical Writing must be in APA format with proper citations (any incorrect citations will be considered plagiarism and thus will be an automatic zero). Any use of AI assistance (This includes software like Grammarly, Chat GPT, etc.) or violation of academic integrity will be penalized. First offense will be penalized based on the instructor's discretion. Second offense will result in the student failing the course. Due dates will be provided on the Black Board and more instructions on how to write a Critical Writing is provided on Black Board. Note that you will be asked to join one on one zoom meetings to discuss your written product.

Zoom Presentation Recordings (110 points):

A total of 11 Zoom recording presentation will be posted by the student worth 10 points each. Each week, the student will provide a PowerPoint presentation recording via Zoom. The presentation will be on the weekly Critical Writing that they have written each week. This presentation will be your opportunity to explain your perspective of the discussion topic, to provide your argument that you have written, and to explain your choice of scientific evidence that you picked to support your arguments. Treat this presentation like you are verbally trying to explain what you have written. The presentation should be between 7 – 10 minutes and must be accompanied by a PowerPoint presentation. You should create a PowerPoint slide that summates your critical writing assignment. This should help you explain what you were trying to argue for your written assignment. Any presentation below 7 minutes will be an automatic zero.

Final Report (100 points):

At the end of the semester, you are required to submit a final report. The report will focus on a topic of your choice within the policing realm. 1) Identify ONE issue that you think is problematic to the American policing system. 2) provide a literature review on what empirical studies have been conducted regarding your topic. 3) Provide your argument (Why you think your topic is an issue) for your topic. 4) Provide supporting empirical evidence (Google Scholar research articles only) for your argument. 5) provide a policy that could reform or fix the issue that you chose (policy must be detailed and descriptive with logical explanation of how and why it could fix or eliminate the issue that you have identified. The minimum/maximum word count for the final report is 2000-2500 and APA format (special emphasis on proper citation) is required (Minimum requirement). Any writing that does not meet the minimum requirement will be an automatic zero. Also, a Zoom presentation will be asked depending on my assessment of the paper. If asked, students will be asked to defend their own writing via zoom conference call.

Artificial Intelligence Policy

Option 1: No Use of Generative AI Permitted [Insert Course Number]

This assumes that all work submitted by students will be generated by the students themselves, working individually or in groups. First offense will result in failure in the assignment. Second offense will result in failure in the entire course.
