COURSE READINGS

- Doing Oral History, Don Ritchie
- The Oral History Reader, edited by Robert Perks and Alistair Thomson
- Other readings available on Blackboard or via TAMUSA library databases

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Exercise critical thinking skills in assessing the impact of oral history to the historian's craft.
- Communicate in writing and in class discussion an understanding of oral history theory and methodology.
- Conduct two oral history interviews, as well as in-class activities, using proper interview methods.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

As students of history, we are accustomed to studying the past by reading secondary sources and scouring digital databases and archival repositories for relevant primary sources. This class introduces students to a different approach to research, one that grants us access to the past, while at the same time enables us to preserve community histories: oral history. Oral history requires patience, quick thinking, extensive research, and above all, the ability to listen critically and with sensitivity.

Students will learn about the history, theory, and method of oral history, as well as about ethics and best practices. We will discuss the different ways historians use it in their research and publications. We will also collaborate with the Voces Oral History Center at the University of Texas at Austin by creating transcriptions for oral history interviews that have already been done. Finally, students will conduct two of their own oral history interviews for the permanent collection at Texas A&M University-San Antonio.

ASSIGNMENTS

ATTENDANCE & PARTICIPATION: 10%. Attendance is mandatory. You will receive a 100 for each day you are in class on time. If you are more than 15 minutes late, you will receive a 50, and if you are absent, you will receive a zero for that day. If you are more than 30 minutes late, you will be marked absent. If you have a documented excused absence, you will not receive a grade for that day.

LISTENING EXERCISES: 15%. Part of being an effective oral historian is learning to listen critically and intently. During the first half of the semester, students will do listening exercises for which they will answer a series of questions after listening to an oral history interview.

TRANSCRIPT FOR VOCES: 15%. We will be partnering with the Voces Oral History Center at the University of Texas at Austin to create an accurate transcript for an oral history interview that is part of their archival collection. Students will be assigned an oral history interview, and, using Otter ai, you will produce a transcript that will become part of the Voces Oral History Collection at the Benson Latin American Library.

ORAL HISTORY INTERVIEWS: Two interviews at 20% each, for a total of 40%. Students will conduct two oral history interviews this semester. The first interview will be with a classmate, and the second interview will be with a family member that is 1-2 generations older than you.

PROJECT PROPOSAL & REFLECTION: 20%. In place of a final exam, students will need to write a proposal for an oral history project that they envision. After going through our course material, what oral history project can you imagine creating to help your community preserve its past, and to help future researchers access its history? After choosing a topic, you will need to draw from our course material to write the proposal, which should include research on the topic, a list of potential interviewees, potential sources of funding, interview questions, and a potential archival repository whose collections coincide with your proposed project.

COURSE EXPECTATIONS

PARTICIPATION AND COURTESY: Discussion is an important part of this course, and we will not always agree. All points of view are welcome, as long as they are informed (meaning, you have done the required reading for class) and are not deliberately discriminatory. As we engage in the material and in conversation with each other, we must remember to do so respectfully.

ATTENDANCE: Attendance in this class is imperative. Changes to the syllabus, advice, and feedback will be given in class and via blackboard announcements. Additionally, attendance is 10% of your grade. See information on the previous page. Cell phones should be on silent during class. Laptops and tablets should only be used to take notes. And please, put the headphones and earbuds away.

LATE AND MAKE UP WORK: Make-ups will be given only in the case of documented medical or family emergencies. They must be completed before the last day of classes. For each day an assignment is late, its grade drops 5 points. I will not accept late work after 6 days. If you need to request an extension, you must contact me before the due date to make your request.

ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT: Students at Texas A&M University-San Antonio are expected to adhere to the highest standards of academic honesty and integrity. Academic dishonesty for which a student is subject to penalty includes cheating, plagiarism, fabrication, multiple submissions, misrepresentation of academic records, facilitating academic dishonesty, unfair advantage, violating known safety requirements and ethical misconduct. This includes holding other students to the same standards and reporting any incidents of alleged violation of the honesty policy to the instructor or, if necessary, to the appropriate academic department head. Students guilty of academic misconduct will receive a zero on the assignment and will be reported to Academic Affairs.

The Elephant in Our Classroom

TL;DR The use of AI is not allowed. It constitutes academic dishonesty. You will get a zero.

AI is everywhere these days, so let's confront the elephant in our classroom--the elephant in every classroom. Here's what happens every time you use AI: the software draws from the published work of others--without their consent, without citing them or compensating them--and produces a seemingly polished piece of writing. But this piece of writing is full of made up evidence and falsified citations. The skills required of a student of history include reading critically, assessing a scholar's use of evidence, making connections between primary and secondary sources, understanding categories of analysis, and constructing your own arguments that require you to use all these skills. AI plagiarizes from people who have waded through these intellectual trenches. It does not itself have these skills. And every time you use AI to write or to construct analysis, you are losing the ability to do this yourself.

Writing and critical thinking are not easy skills to develop. They can make you uncomfortable and uneasy. They are time consuming and inconvenient. But in exchange for the discomfort and time spent, you gain access to another form of self expression--you get to develop your voice as a writer, as a thinker, and as a human being living in our modern world. With our backs against the wall, we're forced to answer the question: how much are we willing to pay for convenience? If you've read this far, you know that I believe the costs are too high. Students are not authorized to use any AI software in this course, and I will not use it either. It is dishonest and a form of plagiarism. You will not receive any credit for work that uses AI.

UNIVERSITY POLICIES & RESOURCES

STUDENT MISCONDUCT: Appropriate conduct is essential to the effective functioning of the University. University policy defines unacceptable conduct, both academic and non-academic misconduct, and penalties for such behavior in The Student Handbook and The Student Code of Conduct.

SIX-DROP RULE: Students are subject to the requirements of Senate Bill (SB) 1231 passed by the Texas Legislature in 2007. SB 1231 limits students to a maximum of six (6) non-punitive course drops (i.e., courses a student chooses to drop) during their undergraduate careers. A non-punitive drop does not affect the student's GPA. However, course drops that exceed the maximum allowed by SB 1231 will be treated as "F" grades and will impact the student's GPA.

EMAIL POLICY AND COURSE COMMUNICATIONS: All correspondence between professors and students must occur via University email accounts. You must have your Jaguar email account ready and working. If it is not working, contact the help desk at helpdesk@tamusa.edu or at 210-784-HELP (4357). If you don't hear back within 48 hours, contact them again. They have many requests during the first part of the semester, so you may need to follow up with them.

FINANCIAL AID AND VERIFICATION OF ATTENDANCE: According to the following federal regulation, 34 CFR 668.21: U.S. Department of Education (DoE) Title IV regulation, a student can only receive Title IV funds based on Title IV eligibility criteria which include class attendance. If Title IV funds are disbursed to ineligible students (including students who fail to begin attendance), the institution must return these funds to the U.S. DoE within 30 days of becoming aware that the student will not or has not begun attendance. Faculty will provide the Office of Financial Aid with an electronic notification if a student has not attended by the published Census Date (the first week of class). Any student receiving federal financial aid who does not attend prior to the published Census Date (the first week of class) will have their aid terminated and returned to the DoE. Please note that any student who stops attending at any time during the semester may also need to return a portion of their federal aid.
